

Three highly respected university professors have gone “mad” since February. In each case they have applied their particular expertise to some kind of criminal activity. They have gone so far as to adopt super villain names and costumes.

February 17th, 2003

Humbug robs a bank he was subdued by police on the scene.

Later identified as Professor Buck Nitty of the University of San Fransisco.

March 19th, 2003

Melter robs an armored car getting away with $72,000 USD.

March 20th, 2003

Melter robs a bank. He is subdued on the scene by police after being shot.

Later identified as Professor Bruno Horgan of the University of Seattle

April 17th, 2003

Shocker attacks the President of the University of Chicago seriously injuring him and doing severe damage to the university administration building. Campus police attempt to stop him but he manages to escape after injuring the responding officers. The University President identifies Professor Herman Shultz as the man in the Shocker costume. Police go to his home and a battle erupts. The Chicago PD is forced to shoot Shocker repeatedly before he can be subdued.

Psychological Review

After a few days in custody each of the men’s mental state deteriorated until they were reduced to rambling idiots shouting about how they would show the world the might of [Insert villain name here].

Subject Review

Humbug

Name: Buck Mitty

Born Indianapolis, IN March 18th 1965

Occupation: Entomologist, Professor @ University of San Fransisco.

Marital Status: Single

Criminal Record: None

M.O.: Tape recordings of “insect sounds”. These sounds were modified and the effects varied from eating a whole in a wall to blowing up a police car.

Melter

Name: Bruno Horgan

Born Queens, New York City, NY September 21st, 1960

Occupation: Physicist, Professor @ University of Seattle.

Marital Status: Divorced

Criminal Record: None

M.O.: Melter Ray, which is some form of variable microwave generator that “dissolves” metal.

Shocker

Name: Herman Shultz

Born Chicago, IL January 27th, 1968

Occupation: Physicist, Professor @ University of Chicago

Marital Status: Single

Criminal Record: Arrested for Assault in 1995

M.O.: Two wrist mounted vibration generators that projected immense blasts of force and could cut through a cement wall in a matter of seconds.